Fighter Jet Relay Race

Use these instructions to help you play the Fighter Jet Relay Race.

Part One:

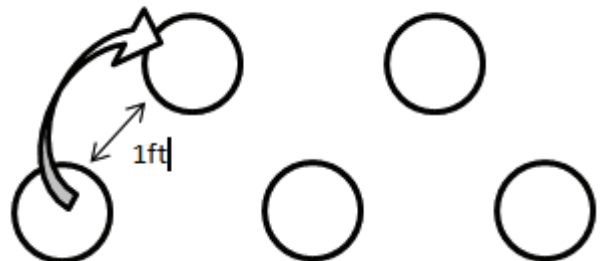

At least five feet away from the starting point, set two pylons or markers three to four feet away from each other.

After leaving the starting line, the runners will have to run around the outside of the markers 5 times. Have them run with their arms out, as though they are a plane. Feel free to adjust the number of laps or the pylon distance for younger children. Have a leader nearby to count each lap. Once runners have completed the laps, they should continue to Part Two.

Part Two:

Set up at least four hula hoops a fair distance away from the markers. Choose this distance based on your playing space. The hoops should be placed about one foot apart in a line that alternates from left to right.

When the runners run through this part of the course, they should continue to keep their arms up as though they are airplanes. When they step to either side, they will make a swooping motion with their upper bodies, so their outside arm is down and their inside arm is held high.

The challenge here is that each player on the other team will have a paper ball to throw at the runners. If a runner is hit, he/she will start this section again. Runners will have to swoop and duck to avoid getting hit, much like a flyer of a fighter jet.

Part Three:

Next, runners will have to throw three bean bags into a bucket. Mark a stop line that the runners cannot cross while they throw. In set up, place the bucket a distance suitable for the age group and have leaders test the distance with a few tosses.

If runners miss the target, they will run up and retrieve their bean bags when they run out. The ones that have already landed in the bucket should stay where they are. If you do not have bean bags prior to the meeting, fill up the toes of socks with rice or dry beans. Leave up to five bean bags at each post.

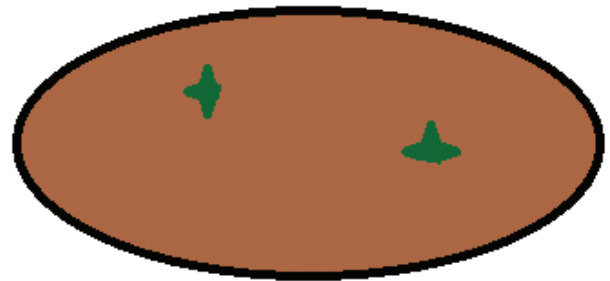

Do not cross|

Part Four:

The last portion of the race will involve a large bucket or bin. Fill this bucket with small toy airplanes—you can buy these at a dollar store. Bury enough toy planes for each runner on the team. If you'd like, put some placeholder toys—like coins or people—to make it more confusing.

Have the runners dig through the bucket to find one of the toys planes. To make things interesting, have the runners use their 'wrong hand' (right handed children should use their left and vice versa).

Her words, my story quotes

CLARA HUGHES:

“What I have to do now is figure where my passion is, and follow my heart; I’ve proven that if I have the passion for something then I can succeed. I haven’t been listening to my heart in the last little while.”

CLARA HUGHES:

“I’ll skate on concrete if I have to. I’m not worried about how fast the ice is. I’m worried about how fast I can go on the ice.”

KAREN KAIN*, AT CELIA FRANCA’S FUNERAL:

“She inspired generations of dancers by her example and her devotion to the art of ballet. And most importantly, she made us believe in ourselves and that no goal was ever out of reach.”

Karen Kain is the current artistic director of the National Ballet of Canada.*

JOURNALIST MARY ALLEN SMITH’S REACTION TO THE SUPREME COURT RULING IN THE PERSON’S CASE:

“The iron dropped into the souls of women in Canada when we heard that it took a man to decree that his mother was not a person.”

ROBERTA BONDAR:

“Each goal attained was like a new badge. Guides taught me to see goals and achieve them.”

ROBERTA BONDAR:

“Society needs heroes to rejuvenate, re-energize, and renew itself with visions of the possible. That’s what heroes do.”

HENRIETTA MUIR EDWARDS:

“We sought to establish the personal individuality of women.”

CELIA FRANCA ON FOUNDING THE NATIONAL BALLET OF CANADA:

“It was one continual fight for money, for support, for approval.”

LOUISE MCKINNEY:

“What, after all, is the purpose of a woman’s life? The purpose of a woman’s life is just the same as the purpose of a man’s life: that she may make the best possible contribution to the generation in which she is living.”

NELLIE MCCLUNG:

“I am a firm believer in women—in their ability to do things and in their influence and power. Women set the standards for the world, and it is for us, women of Canada, to set the standards high”

DEANNA BRASSEUR:

"I remember my first solo [in the CF-18 Hornet]. There I was taxiing out to the end of the runway thinking to myself, 'Can you imagine this? Look at me driving this $35 million jet!'"

EMILY MURPHY:

"Whenever I don't know whether to fight or not, I fight."

JENNIE SMILLIE*:

"I first met the man I was to marry many years later, in 1898, while I was teaching school. At that time, I was planning for medicine, not marriage, and I didn't think I could have both."

Jennie Smillie, Canada's first female surgeon on her marriage at 70 years old.*

DORIS ANDERSON:

"The very first editorial I wrote was about how we needed more women in Parliament. And as a matter of fact, I could run that editorial almost word for word today. It's changed, but not enough."

IRENE PARLBY:

"If politics mean...the effort to secure through legislative action better conditions of life for the people, greater opportunities for our children and other people's children...then it most assuredly is a woman's job as much as it is a man's job."

JOYCE WIELAND:

"Reason over passion"*

The phrase on her most famous piece.*

EMILY MURPHY:

"I believe that never was a country better adapted to produce a great race of women than this Canada of ours, nor a race of women better adapted to make a great country."

We are Iconic Names List

ROBERTA BONDAR:

Roberta Bondar was the first female Canadian astronaut in Space. Astronaut is only of many things that she did with her career: she is also a landscape photographer, an author, a doctor, and a researcher! She trained for eight years for her trip. She was allowed to bring one thing into Space with her: she chose Girl Guide cookies.

HELEN SAWYER-HOGG

Helen Sawyer-Hogg was an astronomer. She received the Rittenhouse Silver Medal, and was president of the Royal Canadian Institute, an organization that is dedicated to the advancement of science. To honor her contributions to astronomy, Minor Planet 2907 was named after her and is known as Planet Sawyer-Hogg.

CLARA HUGHES

Clara Hughes is the only Canadian athlete to win medals in the Summer Olympics and the Winter Olympics. She is one of four athletes in all of Olympic history to achieve this. Clara won two bronze medals in cycling in the 1996 Summer Games. After nearly ten years away from the sport, she competed in the 2002 Winter Games as a speed skater. She won Bronze in the 5000 meter event. During her time away from speed skating, she focused on cycling.

JOYCE WIELAND

Joyce Wieland is an artist and a film maker. At the time, her art was considered to be edgy and ground breaking, which lead to a great deal of media attention. On July 1, 1971, she became the first female Canadian artist to see her work featured in a showcase at the National Gallery of Canada when the doors opened to her exhibit, which was called "True Patriot Love." The widest circulated piece of her work was the postage stamp she designed to honor World Health.

ETHEL STARK

Ethel Stark was the first Canadian woman to play as a soloist in a radio program that was broadcast across Canada. She played Tchaikovsky's piano Concerto with the Curtis Symphony Orchestra. She also founded the Women's Symphony Orchestra, Canada's first symphony comprised entirely of women.

DEANNE BRASSEUR

Canadian pilot Deanne Brasseur is the first woman in the world to earn her license to fly a CF-18 fighter jet. She did this in 1988. Later in her career, she became Canada's first female Aircraft Accident Investigator. When she received her wings with the Canadian military in 1981, she was one of three women in Canadian history to accomplish the feat.

NELLIE MCCLUNG

Nellie McClung was a member of Alberta Legislature. She campaigned for dental and health care for school children, property rights for women, and regulations for safe working conditions. Because of her work toward women's rights, she became known as a Suffragette, a woman who fought for suffrage, the right to vote. She was a member of the Famous Five, who asked if women were considered "Persons" under in Section 24 of the British North America Act (1897) that stated who could run for office.

IRENE PARLBY

Irene Parlby was the first female Cabinet Minister of Alberta and the second Cabinet Minister of all of Canada. She was president of the United Farm Women of Alberta from 1916 – 1919. While she was with the United Farm Women of Alberta, she pushed to improve public health care by establishing city hospitals and dental clinics. She was a member of the Famous Five, a group that fought for women's rights to run for Senate. None of the Famous Five became Senators

HENRIETTA MUIR EDWARDS

Henrietta Edwards spent her entire life fighting for women's rights. She founded the Working Girls' Association in 1875 to provide women with equal job training. In 1897, she co-founded the Victorian Order of Nurses with Lady Aberdeen. She was the last member of the Famous Five, a group that started the movement that was passed by the British Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, one of the highest courts in the British Empire.

DORIS ANDERSON

Doris Anderson was the editor of Chatelaine women's magazine in 1957. She gave the average woman a place to look for practical advice on life. She became the chair of the Canadian Advisory Council on the Status of Women in 1979, which fought for Section 28 of the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms.

"Notwithstanding anything in this Charter, the rights and freedoms referred to in it are guaranteed equally to male and female persons."

CAIRINE WILSON

Cairine Wilson was Canada's first female senator. She was the first woman elected after the Famous Five's petition was passed by the British Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. She was given the Cross of the Knight of the Legion of Honor from France for her work with immigrant children. In 1949, Cairine Wilson became Canada's first female delegate to the United Nations General Assembly.

URZSULA TOKARSKA

Ursula Tokarska was the first Canadian woman to climb the tallest mountain on each of the seven continents. She has climbed Mount Aconcagua in South America, Mount Kilimanjaro in Africa, Mount Elbrus in Europe, Mount Vinson Denali in North America, Mount Kosciuszko in Australia, and Mount Everest in Asia. She was the third woman in Canadian history to scale Mount Everest.

JENNIE SMILLIE

Jennie Smillie is Canada's first female surgeon. She made the decision to be a doctor when she was five years old. She spent her life working toward the goal, earning money as a teacher to pay her way through medical school. She studied at Ontario Medical School for Women, and interned in Philadelphia. She performed her first surgery on a kitchen table, because she was denied proper medical facilities.

CELIA FRANCA

Celia Franca is the founder of the National Ballet of Canada. She followed her dream of being a ballerina, and taught some of Canada's best dancers. She constantly fought for her company to find sponsors, audiences, and talent.

ROSE FORTUNE

Rose Fortune is Canada's first female police officer. She was sold into slavery, in Virginia during the early 1800s. She fled to Canada with her family during the Black Loyalist Movement. They settled in Annapolis, Nova Scotia. There, she started a business moving cargo as it came into the bay. Eventually, she started to protect the cargo from vandals. Soon, she was protecting the property all over Annapolis.

LOUISE MCKINNEY

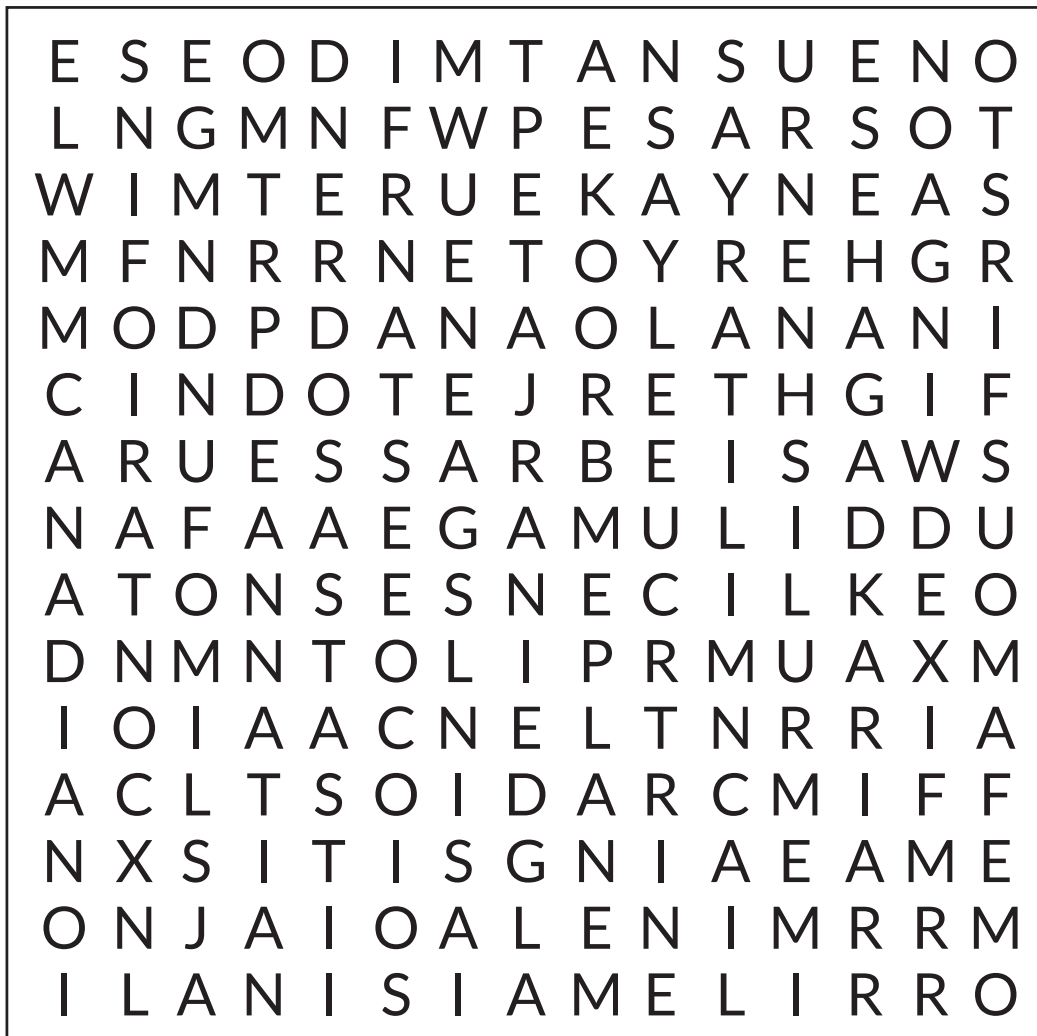

Louise McKinney was the first woman elected to the Legislative Assembly of Alberta in 1917. She was the first woman elected to any legislature in all of the British Empire. She believed in the Dower Act, an act that fought for women's property rights. She was also a member of the Famous Five, who petitioned for women to run for Senate and help shape their country's policies.

EMILY MURPHY

Emily Murphy was the British Empire's first female judge. She accomplished this feat in 1916. She was also a heavy motivator behind Alberta's 1916 Dower Act, which gave married women legal right to the property they own with their husbands. Emily Murphy was one of the Famous Five, political women who are honored with a statue on Parliament Hill.
